DO I NEED A BUILDING PERMIT?

In most parts of Australia - including Victoria - freestanding sheds under 10m² generally do not require a building permit, provided they meet standard height and boundary guidelines. Fortunately, the vast majority of our garden shed range fits perfectly into this hassle-free category!

Looking for something bigger? If you need a larger workshop or garage, check out our fully-customisable sheds, garages and barns. For these major builds, we offer an end-to-end service that takes care of everything, including organising your building permits and supplying licensed builders.
